

Multiplying by 10

R2-D2 is multiplying numbers by 10. Can you fill in the missing numbers and then make up some of your own?

|   |                                                                                     |  |
|---|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|--|
| 8 |  |  |
| 2 |                                                                                     |  |
| 6 |                                                                                     |  |
| 4 |                                                                                     |  |
| 7 |                                                                                     |  |

x 10

|   |                                                                                      |    |
|---|--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|----|
|   |  | 90 |
| 1 |                                                                                      |    |
|   |                                                                                      | 30 |
|   |                                                                                      |    |
|   |                                                                                      |    |

x 10